

DRYS REFUSE TO DROP BARS ON LIQUOR FOR USE IN HOMES

The drastic prohibition enforcement laws suggested by the "drys" now seem certain to pass the House, practically without amendment, except possibly to make them more stringent.

Despite warning from several prohibitionists that the laws will prove "oppressive, irritable and inescapable of enforcement," the radical drys have maintained supreme control in the House all during the consideration of the bill, repeatedly voting down by safe majorities any attempt to modify it.

Final Vote This Week.

A final vote on the bill is expected this week. Congressman Igoe Missouri, "wet," has prepared a new enforcement bill in three sections in place of the sixty sections of the Volstead act, and will submit it to the House just before the final vote is taken. It carries no definition of intoxicating liquor.

Drys yesterday refused to allow the home manufacture of beer, light wine and cider, for personal use, and spent hours trying to close all possible loopholes in the provision allowing doctors to prescribe liquor.

To prevent drug stores from becoming saloons, an amendment of Congressman Miller of Washington was adopted, providing that physicians may not make liquor prescriptions in drug stores nor have their offices in the stores. Examination of persons with the view of prescribing liquor is prohibited in drug stores, and the limit a sick man can obtain is one liquor prescription every ten days.

Advocating his amendment, Miller said that in one section of the country 800 saloons were closed, and nearly 500 drug stores immediately opened.

The section of the bill prohibiting the advertising of liquor was passed without an amendment. All electric signs and billboards advertising liquor must be torn down as soon as the bill is approved. Papers can no longer print the "picture of a brewery, distillery, bottle, keg, barrel or box or other receptacle represented as containing liquor."

Provision probably will be made, some dry leaders said, for safeguarding the use of sacramental wine. The present bill, Congressman Igoe claims, will absolutely prohibit it. This change was not denied by dry leaders.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon opposed the drys for their attempts to stop the home manufacture of drinks that will be declared intoxicating, but that heretofore have been considered harmless.

"You can't enact a law that will keep a man after he makes a barrel of cider from putting it in his cellar, letting it 'harden' and then drinking it," he said.

Advocating strict limitations on flavoring extracts, Congressman Tinner (Kan.) told of men getting drunk on lemon extracts. Wets claim no flavoring extract can be made without the use of alcohol.

Opposing factions in the House argued a late hour last night. "Hopelessly beaten," wets fought with their backs to the wall, contesting the steady march of the "drys."

Drys succeeded in drawing the net still tighter around the "private cellar." After rejecting an amendment by Congressman Moore, Pennsylvania, to strike out the provision relating to search and seizure in private homes, the House adopted an amendment by Congressman Barclay, Kentucky, to permit seizure in homes where liquor is sold. The original provision authorized such action only when a portion of the dwelling was regularly used as a store, lodging house or place of business.

Barclay's amendment, adopted 71 to 21, strikes at "blind tigers," and is designed to make it impossible for bootleggers to operate from private residences.

Mrs. Wilson Saw Wets On Beaten Private; Had Prison Cruelty Stopped

NEW YORK, July 20.—Brutal treatment of American military prisoners in Paris was brought up with a sudden attack when Mrs. Woodrow Wilson first heard of it, according to John W. Kehoe, a hospital superintendent of the Knights of Columbus, who has just returned from France.

"When Mrs. Wilson first went to Paris she was visiting Base Hospital 57," said Mr. Kehoe, in a report to William L. Larkin, director of K. of C. overseas activities. "She was called to the cot of a doughboy who displayed numerous welts on his arms and back, saying they were received in a prison camp. Mrs. Wilson told the President, and immediately the entire guard staff were brought up on charges and removed."

"Prisoners are said to have received the best of treatment since that time."

GERMANS IN DARK ON KAISER'S TRIAL

BERLIN, July 20.—Inasmuch as the peace treaty requires nothing from the German government itself with regard to the ex-Kaiser, but merely concerns the delivery of officers in Germany, it is stated here, that the government was taking no official position toward his proposed trial.

Privately, officials expressed the view that the allies would not actually extradite Wilhelm, as that would only martyrize him. It is reported that the government had had absolutely nothing of an official character from the entente regarding delivery of German officers charged with war crimes, nor anything concerning the ex-Kaiser, except newspaper discussion.

Delivery of Wilhelm Hohenzollern apparently would stir up bitterness among the German population as nothing else would at this time. While the Germans do not want him as a ruler, they say they dislike the idea of his accusers being the judge and jury. Moreover, they say their feeling is the same as other nations would be if one of their own blood, who has been in a position of power were tried by his enemies.

H. MORGENTHAU ARRIVES IN WARSAW

LONDON, July 20.—Henry Morgenthau, envoy to Poland, has arrived in Warsaw, according to a dispatch to the Morning Post today. Homer Johnson, of Cleveland, Ohio, is expected later from France.

Morgenthau issued a statement saying the mission was due to the United States Government's friendly desire to assist the Jews and Christians alike. Amelioration of conditions for the Jews would benefit every one in Poland, he said. He declared it was necessary to strengthen Poland to resist the Bolsheviks.

"I hope a basis of reconciliation may be established between the Poles and the Jews," Morgenthau said. "Divided, Poland will be weak; united, she will be as strong as any country in Europe."

POLES SEIZE MONK FROM LITHUANIANS

LONDON, July 20.—The important city of Minsk in Lithuania, has been captured by the Poles, states a Central News dispatch from Warsaw.

D. C. Soldiers Praise Work Done In France By "Red Triangle" Men

Washington and Maryland soldiers overseas were ably served by "Y" men, according to the stories told here by returning troops who speak enthusiastically about the work done by wearers of the red triangle in France.

In the Twenty-ninth division, composed partly of Washington and Maryland National Guard units, the Y. M. C. A. men were under the leadership of the Rev. Walter D. Howell, Detroit, Mich. Dr. Howell was cited for bravery while fighting with the First division, and his loss was felt by that unit when he was transferred to the Twenty-ninth.

In the fighting north of Verdun, 91,290 francs worth of supplies were distributed to the men of the Twenty-ninth. The men who followed the men over the top and in their advance toward the retreating Huns.

The story of George J. Hunter, formerly a Detroit business man, is told by men of the Twenty-ninth. Mr. Hunter advanced with his unit when they left the cover of the front lines on October 21, and before he had gone forward very far, was wounded in the left hip.

Refusing to be evacuated, he remained with his troops, and after receiving first aid treatment, con-

HIBERNIANS HEAR DE VALERA TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 20.—Unveiling a statue of Robert Emmet in Golden Gate Park here this afternoon, attendance at an Irish picnic and addressing a mass meeting in the Oakland civic auditorium this evening, is the program Eamon De Valera, president of the "Irish Republic," is fulfilling today.

Enthusiastic over his reception and support here, De Valera, certain that the West is solidly behind him, and instead of visiting Los Angeles and other Pacific coast cities, he leaves tomorrow for New York to confer with Irish leaders. He will stop at Butte, Mont., on his way East.

The visit of De Valera was coincident with the national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians here. Through conferences with the delegates and officials of the order, De Valera declares he has been able to make a complete survey of American opinion regarding the Irish cause.

Hibernians want to meet in 1920 on the "Old Sod." If it can't arrange to be held next spring a committee will fill in the blank left for the convention city on adjournment here yesterday.

ARGENTINA CONGRATULATES GERMANY UPON PEACE

COPENHAGEN, July 20.—The German National Assembly, said reports received here, has received a telegram from the Argentine parliament expressing joy at the arrival of peace and the action of the national assembly which made peace possible.

D. C. and M. D. POLICE FIGHT OVER EAGLAN

A bitter controversy has ensued between the Washington police and Sheriff William L. Aud, of Montgomery county, over the guilt of Forrest Eaglan, a negro suspect held in connection with the attack on Miss Mary Saunders, an employee of the War Department, and three other Washington women in the suburbs of the Capital recently.

Without mincing words, Sheriff Aud yesterday declared that he was not receiving co-operation from the Washington police. He stated he had been ignored, and because of this reason he asked that detectives from Baltimore be sent to the county to further investigate the arrest of Forrest Eaglan, the negro arrested at the instance of Sheriff Aud and who is being held by the Washington police at the Seventh precinct police station.

Asks Detectives. Because of his dissatisfaction with the methods of the Washington police, Sheriff Aud yesterday asked the police commissioners of Baltimore to detail two detectives to assist him in the investigation. Late yesterday afternoon Detectives William Murphy and James Manning reached Rockville from Baltimore and they went over the ground with Sheriff Aud.

It is the opinion of Sheriff Aud that Eaglan was within 300 feet of the spot where Miss Saunders was attacked not more than forty-five minutes before the assault. He has five caddies who know the negro personally who have stated they saw Eaglan on the golf links within an hour before and after the assault on Miss Saunders.

The negro has proved to the satisfaction of some of the Washington detectives who are investigating the attacks on the women that he was in a poolroom with the assault on Miss Saunders. Sheriff Aud says this was impossible, arguing that the five caddies who know Eaglan personally saw him at the club between 2 and 4 o'clock on the afternoon that Miss Saunders was attacked.

"I want to say that the Washington detectives have talked to Eaglan in his cell for the time the assault occurred," Sheriff Aud said. "I know nothing of it. It seems to me that I or some representative of police authority of Montgomery county, should have been present when the negro was questioned."

"No they have not given me a chance. The aim of the Washington police seems to be one of trying to prove the negro, who has been identified by five caddies, as innocent."

"I intend to have Eaglan brought to Rockville. I believe he knows more about the assault on Miss Saunders than he has told. I am satisfied he is the assailant of the woman."

LEAGUE ASSURES PEACE, SAYS FORD

war and that the lesson of this one will be wasted. "What method of settling differences would you suggest?" the correspondent inquired.

"A league of nations, by all means," Mr. Ford replied. "If this property owner whose house we are passing has a dispute with his neighbor over the line of that fence right there, does he go out and hire a gang of gunmen to shoot up the neighbor? Of course he doesn't. He goes down there to the red brick court house, and a jury settle the matter and he and his neighbor are good friends again."

"A couple of States may differ. Do they arm their citizens and go whooping into war? They do not. They send their representatives down to Washington and the high and learned Supreme Court adjusts their difficulties—without loss of life or a day's productiveness."

"Now what's the difference, I'd like to know, between these two neighbors having a dispute, two States having a difference and two nations of the world having a quarrel? If the neighbors and the States can have their affairs settled by a county court or a Supreme Court, why can't two nations have their difficulties adjudicated by a court of the world?"

"I think the man that opposes a league of nations and a court of the world is all wrong."

Second Mile. The pair of pedestrians turned off into a byroad. At a fence was a farm hand who had just put up his horses and was having a pipe in the glowing darkness before turning in.

"I look to see in a few years," Ford continued, "groups of farmers taking down their fences, throwing all their lands together and working on a co-operative basis, each man putting in his labor and taking out his reward, according to the amount of acreage he originally held."

"I think the man that opposes a league of nations and a court of the world is all wrong."

Third Mile. Heading back toward the lights of the city, Ford began to talk of money making and money itself.

"Everybody should have plenty of money," was his encouraging statement. "I imagine everyone should have enough money to live comfortably, have a decent home, good clothes, sufficient good food to eat, a motor car if he wants one, means to travel occasionally and get to understand his fellow men in other States and countries."

"Can such a condition be brought about?" inquired the correspondent. "It can, and some day will," was Ford's earnest reply. "Increased production of things people want and need—more people working, to the effect that increased production, instead of idling or wasting efforts as they do now—will go a long way toward bringing about a condition where each individual will have means to be far more comfortable than he now is."

Production Means Money. "Employers must learn one great reason, and that is this: The more money they give to their workers in return for their production, the more production there will be and the more money will return to the employer himself."

"I have proved that by paying men liberal wages and giving them easy hours of toil. They have worked better and harder, and they have turned out the finished product in increased volume, and they have made money for us as well as for themselves."

"Will there be a shorter working day than eight hours?" Ford was asked.

"Here will—and it will result in a shorter working day."

"I have proved that by paying men liberal wages and giving them easy hours of toil. They have worked better and harder, and they have turned out the finished product in increased volume, and they have made money for us as well as for themselves."

equal or even greater production," he replied. The hikers were now back at their hotel.

"Think some of these things over," smilingly suggested Mr. Ford. "I'm not a prophet, but they are all coming true, I believe."

ARREST CANDIDATE FOR WAR OPINIONS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 20.—C. E. Ruthenberg, Socialist candidate for mayor of Cleveland, was under arrest here on the charge of violating the newly enacted syndicalism act. He was making his first campaign speech last night when a squad of police, led by Chief Smith, broke up the meeting. There was no disorder. According to the police, Ruthenberg, addressing a huge crowd, called the war "mass murder."

To labor leaders, the coming meeting is next in importance to the peace conference. They will outline labor policies during the reconstruction period, with the expectation that these policies will have a great effect on the welfare of workers in Europe and America.

For the first time since the war German delegates will be present. Austria and Hungary also will be represented, besides the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Holland, and Scandinavia. The Americans who will attend the conference are Samuel Gompers, Daniel J. Tobin, and John H. Hynes, who have arrived here on their way to Holland.

One of the first duties of the meeting will be to choose the next international headquarters. Berlin was the last seat and the Germans still retain records and property which were not accessible during the war. Gompers will propose Washington as the "world labor capital."

Throughout the war Gompers refused to attend conferences with the Germans. He said today: "They ought to be grateful to be treated equally. We do not propose to be exacting with them, but we do propose to take the international headquarters from Germany."

Leaders of the federation plan complete reorganization on the basis of peace and new world-wide labor conditions with particular reference to the labor convention in the peace treaty. Speaking of the significance of the meeting, Gompers said today: "We hope to agree on a policy of co-operation which will go far, in combination with the league of nations, not only to help make the world safe for democracy, but to make it safe from slaughter. We think a sympathetic policy of protection and promotion of the rights and interests of workers will have a great effect in this direction."

WORLD LABOR MEN GATHER IN HOLLAND

LONDON, July 20.—Labor leaders representing many millions of workers in the larger part of the civilized world are gathering today for the meeting of the International Trades Union Federation, to be held in Amsterdam July 25.
